At 3 o'clock this afternoon, the first heats of three races had been run off. In the 2:18 trot Dr. Chas. K. Cole was first with Lou Burton, Abbie Frost and Kissimmee finishing in the order named. The time was 2:22 3/4. In the 2:09 pace, Rob Roy was first. Bessie Woodland Baron Belfry and Prince Alington followed in order. Time: 2:15. A special race was added to the day's program, the 2:22 pace. Judge finished first in the opening heat, followed by Labell Patch, Little Louise and Lady Brett. Time: 2:22 1/2.

Interstate day opened at the fair today with clear skies and with a cool breeze that added life to the activities.

Secretary Van Auker expects an attendance of between 7,000 and 8,000. Reports from rural districts yesterday showed that the countryside was "making ready" for the fair today.

All exhibitions have arrived at the grounds and judging has started. Hotels are filled to capacity. Many reservations were made ahead of time.

Crowds Here Today
Headed by the military band, West Salem was represented in La Crosse today, several scores strong.
Caledonia, Houston, La Crescent, and other Minnesota places have large representations in La Crosse today.
Iowa, the state farthest removed from La Crosse people is showing her loyalty to her Wisconsin neighbors. Several towns, some as far away as McGregor, are sending visitors.

and rooming houses throughout the city are now bearing the brunt of the crowds from far and near.

Every train arriving from points in Minnesota and Wisconsin is bringing dozens of people, some for a day and most of them for the entire week.

The fair association promises races and in abundance today. The track is in good condition.

Much interest centered today about the automobile show in the large tent near the south gate. Numbers of local dealers are showing their cars.

An automobile climbing a fifty per cent grade, with smooth tires and running on slick boards draws large crowds. With only a start of a few feet, the machine climbs the incline, thirty feet in length, like a streak of lightning.

Farmers Numerous
Farmers gather in numbers about the hundreds of different varieties of machinery on the grounds. Everything for the farm is shown, and many kinds of machinery that have never been seen before are on exhibition. Many farmers are placing orders for next year's harvesting machinery.

Crowds fill the exposition building, where things nearest the heart of a woman were shown.

An exhibit of the La Crosse Telephone company showing the country side dotted with telephone wires is in the center of the building.

Car Service Good
Street car service is almost continual from 10 o'clock in the morning until time for the crowds to return home in the late afternoon.

AGREE ON CLAYTON BILL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Complete agreement on the Clayton omnibus anti-trust bill was reached by the conferees of the senate and house this afternoon. The house provision prohibiting interlocking directorates among banks was restored.

The Reed amendment providing for sale of corporations violating the anti-trust law to persons who would restore competition was stricken out. A senate amendment was retained prohibiting "tying" or exclusive contracts.

NON-MEMBERS HAD BEEN NAMED

Only Two of Important Body Have Been Elected by the People to Run the Republican Campaign

DEMOCRATS TO SELECT LATER

Chairman Schubert Has Not Called Members Together to Name Those to Whom to Entrust Chances

Following an informal ruling by First Assistant Attorney General Walter Drew to the effect that members of the executive and finance committees must be members of the county committee, the local republican candidates and County Chairman P. J. Yerly announced today that the executive committee chosen two days ago will be re-chosen.

At a meeting of candidates, Mr. Yerly and Secretary Lucien Reid, executive and finance committees were chosen. Only two of the executive committees were members of the county committee and no one on the finance committee was a duly elected county committeeman.

Says It's Illegal
Attorney Charles Schweizer reasoned today that members of the sub-committees must be members of the county committee. His contention was that he, as an elector, voted for county committeemen to run the campaign. He maintained that the action of the candidates and county officers to appoint sub-committees of outsiders was to delegate the authority of the county committee to others.

Agrees With Schweizer

The assistant attorney general agreed with Mr. Schweizer, saying that, in his opinion, election of a county committeeman made him a quasi-officer of the county committee.

Neither Chairman Yerly nor Secretary Reid are members of the county committee and some maintain they have no right to serve. In the past, however, chairmen and secretaries have been selected who were not members of the county committee.

Dainty Miss Undaunted by Accident and Will Resume Thrilling Feats for Crowds Today

Miss Stinson will make aeroplane flights this afternoon. The accident occurring yesterday afternoon has been repaired, and the fair association guarantees flights.

Displaying daring courage and a cool head, dainty Miss Catherine Stinson, aged 19, the world's youngest aviatrix, saved her life yesterday afternoon when the machine in which she was flying was caught in an "air pocket" and one of the wings disabled.

The accident occurred near the Hogan school, an eighth of a mile from where she started, a counter draft of wind met the current she was driving against.

Meets Air Pocket

Starting from a level piece of prairie at Twentieth and Jackson streets, her machine lifted into the air easily. A high wind blew directly from the northwest. It was her aim to meet it full. As the machine passed the Hogan school, an eighth of a mile from where she started, a counter draft of wind met the current she was driving against.

Guy Wire Breaks

A guy wire on the right side of her machine broke, throwing the plane out of shape, and it was with difficulty that Miss Stinson managed to right the machine and prevent a straight drop. The right wing drooped, but she landed the machine.

EXPECT WORD OF GERMAN RETREAT

British Experts Believe a Part of Enemy's Force Has Already Been Withdrawn

FIND NINE MILES OF SLAIN

German Dead Thick in the Trenches Taken After Long Artillery Attack

BY ED L. KEEN

LONDON, Sept. 23.—With the German right wing turned by the allies the British military experts today were waiting word that the enemy had withdrawn to the lines just inside of the northern French frontier. Although it is admitted the battle will probably last at least two more days, the military experts believe a part at least of the German forces have already retired to their new fortified positions along the Sambre.

Nine Miles of Dead

Nine miles of trenches filled with unburied dead were the fruits of yesterday's fighting by the British troops now making up the allied left wing. They were taken in a successful turning movement in the district just south of St. Quentin and Peronne. For hours before the British charged the line, the British artillery shelled the German position. From aeroplanes that flew low, devastating the hall of German bullets, the range was given, and the shells burst like deadly hail over the tops of the great line of parallel trenches jammed with German troops waiting for orders to charge the British line. Twice they essayed to do so, but the British fire was so deadly, that all finally had to crawl back to the earthworks.

Success for British

When the British finally charged there was hardly a single unscarred German left in the lines. The wounded and the dead were so mixed that it was hard to rescue those who could recover. But the movement had been a complete success from the British viewpoint and the position marks the first real ground gained. From these trenches it will be possible to check any further attempt to push southwest, and it gives the British a strategic position that commands the roads from Peronne to Bellecourt and north by east toward Guise.

It is believed that as a result of this latest success the British will now be able to push the Germans entirely from the neighborhood of St. Quentin and reoccupy that village.

Report Gen. von Hindenburg Has Pursued Army Into Fortress at Kovno

REPORT HUGE LOSSES TO CZAR

Says His Troops Lost 150,000 Killed in Battle Recently Near Tannenberg

BY KARL H. VON WIEGAND

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
BERLIN, Sept. 23.—By Wireless Through Sayville, L. I., to The United Press.—The war office officially declared today that conditions at the front continue to show the steady but necessarily slow advance of the German armies.

The war office again places all of the responsibility for the destruction of Rheims cathedral, squarely at the doors of the French. It is stated that the Germans withdrew from the town to save it, but that the French not only reoccupied it, but posted much of their artillery, especially their three-inch guns, there.

Most of the cathedral was occupied, the official report says, by French general officers, who from that point of vantage, signalled the range of the German positions to the gunners in the streets and on the outskirts of the city.

Discovered Signal Men

When the deadly character of the French artillery fire became manifest, it was discovered that these officers were in the tower and the signal men could be plainly seen.

That the cathedral was damaged is a matter of deep regret to all Germans, but it is insisted that the firing on Rheims was a matter of the most urgent military necessity.

The sinking of three British cruisers is a big news feature here. The morning newspapers all place emphasis on this victory. They explain it will serve to reconcile the sailors with the policy of repression which the high naval authorities have imposed upon them. Officers and men alike have been chafing because they were not permitted to go out and fight.

A hostile aeroplane dropped two bombs near the Dusseldorf airship hall yesterday, but did no damage.

Chase Russians

Special messages from the eastern front say Gen. von Hindenburg pursued the Russians until they reached the shelter of their fortress at Kovno. The roads are now impassable. The rainy season has set in all of the territory close to the frontier is a quagmire.

A number of special correspondents make charges that the Russians are violating the Red Cross. They assert that they saw a Russian train of between 40 and 50 cars loaded with rifles, and ammunition, but with the insignia of the Red Cross on every car.

The noted Bavarian socialist, Michael Schwab, has been awarded the iron cross for bravery in the field. He was serving in the landwehr.

PARIS DECLARES ALLIES ARE ABOUT TO FORCE RETREAT

Official News from the Front Says Germans Are Retiring on the Left

ADMIT THE LOSSES ARE HUGE

Fighting Has Been Desperate Hand to Hand Struggle Most of Time

VON KLUCK'S ARMY IN DANGER

Say He Must Retire Into Belgium or Be Surrounded by Superior Force

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
PARIS, Sept. 23.—Success seems about to crown the efforts of the allies to break through the German right and force a retreat all along the line. The official news from the front states that the Germans have been driven back ten miles on the left and that the general enveloping movement continues with success.

Line Must Fall Back

As interpreted by the military experts here, the allies have succeeded in pushing Gen. Von Kluck out of alignment with the balance of the German battle front and this will make it necessary for the other German armies to fall back or take chances of being enveloped themselves in turn.

The losses, however, have been enormous. It is admitted that in the last ten days three times as many French and British have been killed as in the retreating movement toward the Paris forts and in the battle of the Marne. It has been desperate hand to hand fighting most of the time, and although the Germans are slowly being jammed back toward the border, every foot of the ground gained by the allies is at fearful cost. The only comforting note in the entire affair is the statement that the Germans are at least losing fully as many.

Gain Ten Miles

The official resume of the situation, made public at Bordeaux at 3 o'clock and wired to Gen. Gallieni, stated that by violent fighting the French left on the right bank of the river Oise has now succeeded in advancing a short distance. It has gained more than ten miles, the war office says. The Germans are again attacking in force from the northeast of Verdun, but the French, by a series of brilliant counter attacks, finally repulsed them.

Von Kluck in Danger

The positive declaration that Von Kluck's army is in danger of being cut off was made at the war office today. It was stated that while reinforcements are being rushed to his rescue from Belgium, they will not be able to prevent the German right being encircled and forced either to retreat in haste toward Belgium or meet an attack from all sides by an army of vastly superior force.

The British and French columns now outnumber the Germans two to one in the western section of the line. There are more than 1,000,000 French and British engaged in the battle along the entire front, and nearly half that number held in reserve should they be needed.

Think Germans Retiring

Although the fighting in the neighborhood of Rheims continues without interruption, it is stated that the French are now occupying a much better position. They resisted a night German assault in force last night, driving the enemy back in great disorder. The French position continues with the Germans using their heaviest artillery. It is believed that under cover of this fire they are already withdrawing the major portion of their forces.

New Skin Peeler In Great Demand

Since the discovery that mercurized wax possesses remarkable absorbent powers when applied to the skin, the demand for it as a complexion renewer has been tremendous. Druggists in every section report sales as far exceeding those of anything similar they have ever had on their shelves.
Ordinary mercurized wax, according to Prof. Hoffman, gently peels off the devitalized cuticle, in minute particles, so that the user gradually loses her old worn-out complexion, the more youthful under-skin taking its place. Cutaneous eruptions, blotches, moth patches, tan and freckles are of course removed at the same time. As the wax is entirely harmless, and easy to use, women all over the country are purchasing it in original packages and using it to quickly rejuvenate their complexions. The wax is applied to face, neck or hands the same as cold cream, allowed to remain over night, then washed off with warm water.—National Drug Review.

PUBLIC DEBATE

Sept. 21, 1914.
Editor, La Crosse Tribune.

Dear Sir:
Will you kindly permit me to give my version of conditions existing in Germany, the cause of the war, and the feeling of the people of Germany towards the Emperor? It has been but seven months since I left Germany, and therefore I know something of the general feeling of the Kaiser's subjects.

During my service as a soldier I have often heard my elders mention the war, which now is on, as being inevitable; just when it would come was a question, but everything has pointed toward the present war for at least twenty years.

It is therefore no wonder that Germany had taken measures of precaution in order to be ready not for the purpose of offense, but to defend herself against the surrounding countries who had shown no real friendly feeling toward her, through what I know to be a feeling of envy because of the rapid growth of Germany commercially and not so much because of her mighty army.

This army was built to defend her commercial growth and to keep her from an attack, not for war, but for peace. Where has Germany been the aggressor against a weaker nation in order to add to her territory? Can you say that of the other nations, especially Russia and England?

Much criticism is shown against the militarism of Germany and the Kaiser is pictured as a great potentate who oppresses his people, and rules them with a mighty hand.

How little the people here seem to know, or understand, of the spirit which really exists, and of the real loyalty and love for both country and Kaiser.

How eager are the young men to enter the service and with what pride they don the uniform of the army of their country, and what disappointment there is when, for some reason or other, a man is rejected.

This is not enlarged upon but is fact, showing the contrary of what we read and often hear of regarding the compulsory service.

This is not a spirit which craves war, and no one who has not felt it can begin to realize the pride the German soldier takes in having been a soldier and served his time.

The accusation that Germany has sought this war to rule Europe, or perhaps the whole world, is utterly preposterous, and I know, in spite of much feeling to the contrary, that every German feels he is fighting to save his nation from the desire of the allies to humiliate her because of her achievements in the world of business and learning.

Every German soldier has a trade or profession, and his education is superior to that of any other nation. This is acknowledged by most every one. It therefore seems unlikely that such a class of men are guilty of the crimes of which their enemies are accusing them. Every thinking man knows better.

Nowhere will you find more strict obedience than in the army, and it is just as compulsory for every soldier to attend church every Sunday, as it is to do any of his other work. Does not this also speak well for that country?

You will pardon me, but I felt it my duty to enlighten some of my American friends on these things, as I know most have the wrong impression and I have given only some of those things which I absolutely know to be facts.

Respectfully yours,
ERNEST STEIFF.

OPPOSED HIS PEN TO GERMAN'S GUN

ANTWERP, Sept. 12.—By Mail to New York.—The Belgians are telling with great pride many stories of Burgomaster Max of Brussels, who is now regarded as one of the national heroes, as a result of his handling of the delicate situation presented when the Germans marched upon the capital.

One of these stories is that when M. Max met the German commander and it was agreed that the invading troops should enter the city without resistance, the German officer laid his revolver on the table across which they were to confer with a great flourish. Immediately the burgomaster whipped out his fountain pen and with a gesture equally emphatic banged it down on the table alongside the revolver.

Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not gripe or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is therefore the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

THE UNDERTOW

BY LOUISE MERRIFIELD

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"I think you're very narrow in your point of view, Bella. He's really a wonderful boy, perfectly wonderful. He's saved eight lives this summer at the beach—"

"A professional life saver could have done as well. I don't like all these college boys who sweep down on a place like Tonowa and gobble up the best positions for the season." Isabelle tied a red and black silk cap over her close braids firmly. It was warm in the pine dressing room of the bath house. She had stopped in from her own next door to help Celia with the two kiddies, and as usual these last days at the resort, Celia had handed out some sisterly admonition regarding her treatment of Ralph Marden.

"They don't do it for fun, Belle. They're working their way through and I think it's dandy of them, and George thinks so, too."

"Of course, if George says so you'd agree," laughed Isabelle. "You dear old easy going thing. They work hard, don't they? A few hours a day waiting on the table, or here on the beach flirting with every pretty girl in sight, and twanging mandolins and guitars to the moon after dark. No, thanks. Perhaps if I were a real summer girl myself I'd feel different, but I'm not."

"I never saw a teacher in my life with a throb of a real sentiment in her," Celia fastened the last button on George Jr.'s suit, and opened the door. "He's so manly and good looking, and he's tried every way he could to make you like him. He finished college this year, one of the boys told me, and is going to take a couple of years at Columbia Law."

"Yes, and he'll probably end up with selling automobiles or real estate," Isabelle locked the door after them, and they strolled down to the beach. George and Dot had scudded ahead like windblown leaves and were splashing in the fringe of white surf.

It was a splendid day. The first breath of autumn seemed to have fallen over the land. The sky and sea had taken on a deeper hue, and all the rocks and hills were catching a tawny shade from sun dried grasses and sumac.

Along the shore line the last rush of visitors dotted water and beach. Isabelle stood for a minute on the sand.

"You're not going far out, are you, Miss Chadwick?" The voice came from just behind her. Isabelle didn't even turn her head.

"Why not?" "The undertow is heavy this morning. It caught even Tod Gissing awhile ago, and we pulled him out."

"He wasn't—it wasn't serious?" She looked back at him now, her dark blue eyes filled with quick concern. Marden met them stolidly. "No, he's all right. You like Tod, don't you?"

Isabelle flushed slightly. It wasn't that she liked Tod at all. He was simply a young teacher of social science at a western college, and they had found a great deal in common to talk over, but some spirit of contrariness led her on.

"He seems to have found his way in life. I like the worker rather than the dilettante."

It was a typically feminine bit of spite. She knew well that while Tod had been sitting around the hotel piazzas for a month reading books and magazines, Marden had been pacing a hot beach day after day, doing real work, yet because one had a yearly salary, and the other still chose to study, she could take sides. Ralph smiled down at her.

"Don't try the undertow," he said again, and she went down to join Celia.

Just how it all happened she could never quite remember afterward. Deliberately she had made her way out to the second life raft, past all lines, to show him she was not afraid. She was the best swimmer on the beach besides himself, and this day she felt almost like challenging him.

Celia was clinging to the life rope, chatting with some of the women from the hotel. George and Tod had rambled along the beach, squealing and kicking in the surf with a lot of other children, when there came a high pitched scream, and George's yellow curls vanished under a big wave.

All her life Isabelle remembered Celia's cry that followed, and how she turned to Ralph Marden as he came on a run down the beach. There was not a sign of the child in the heavy rolling surf. The undertow had caught him and swept him under. The life guard waded in, dived less than a minute afterward. Some of the other men followed him. Little Tod stood with the water breaking over her bare toes, holding out both arms to the water, and sobbing piteously for the big brother boy it had taken away from her.

And suddenly Isabelle saw something, just a swirl of tangled yellow hair, and the flash of an upturned face borne outward by the sea, and she slipped from the raft after it. Oh, but she was glad she was strong! She had never feared the water, and now she felt she could battle with it, and make it give her back what she loved. It was coming toward her, and she went under to find it with reaching arms.

"Not my neck, boy," she gasped, as they gained the surface, the frightened boy clinging about her

LONDON, Sept. 23.—It is admitted here that because of the aggressiveness of the German forces in South Africa the authorities of the U. S. of S. A. have been compelled to enlist additional troops.

COMBING WON'T RID HAIR OF DANDRUFF

The Easiest and Best Way Is to Dissolve It.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and every one notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Daddy's Bedtime

We Would
Story — Have No Gardens
Without Birds.

KIDDIES, I'm going to tell you what a good housekeeper old Dame Nature is."

Jack and Evelyn snuggled down in the big cozy sofa and fixed round eyes upon daddy's face.

"If the birds should all die, my dears, there wouldn't be a leaf, a blade of grass or any green thing growing after a few years had passed."

"You see, birds like grubs and insect eggs, the things that harm the fruit trees and bushes, and when you see them flitting about in the garden singing so blithely and fluttering their wings so coquettishly they are not playing at all. They are working, and the work they do saves our fruit for us."

"The English sparrow and the catbird are the only ones that we ought to kill if we can, although the catbird, while he is very fond of cherries, kills insects for us every waking hour from April to October. He adores grass-hoppers, and a scientist in Washington who had this bird under observation saw five of them eat thirty grasshoppers each for one meal."

"Besides grasshoppers, the catbird is very fond of caterpillars, grubs, flies, beetles, spiders, moths and other insects."

"And, kiddies, wouldn't a garden seem queer without birds flashing about twittering and singing their morning love songs in the spring and the evening carols we wait for each evening?"

"It would be almost like having a garden without flowers and vines and trees and bushes."

"I'll read you a puzzle by an ardent bird fancier that I saw in the paper today."

Daddy drew a clipping from his pocket and read:
"If one chickadee eats 444 eggs of the apple tree moth on Monday, 333 eggs of the canker worm on Tuesday and 777 miscellaneous grubs, larvae and insect eggs on Wednesday and Thursday, how long will it take a flock of twenty-two chickadees to rid an orchard of every pest it contains?"

"Jack, do you think you could do that sum?"

"I'm not very good at doing sums, daddy."

"Probably to one cherry that a bird will eat he will destroy hundreds of insects to pay for it."

"For the scientists employed by the government have analyzed the stomach contents of hundreds of birds and find in them very little of cultivated fruits and grains compared with the seeds that should be destroyed."

"So, remember, kiddies, no birds, no gardens. Good night and pleasant dreams."

I, Frank H. Burgess, business manager of The La Crosse Tribune, do solemnly swear that the actual number of copies of the paper named, printed and circulated during the month of August, 1914, was as aboveSubscribed and sworn to before me this first day of Sept., 1914.A. E. BLEEKMAN, Notary Public.THE END OF MONARCHYAn interesting point is being discussed based upon the following paragraph addressed by Sir Edward Grey, on behalf of England, to M.
de Bunsen, British ambassador in Vienna, Austria, shortly before the war:The possible consequences of the present situation were terrible. If as many as four great powers of Europe
—let us say Austria, France, Russia
and Germany—were engaged in war,
it seemed to me that it must involve the expenditure of so vast a sum of money and such an interference with trade that a war would be accompanied or followed by a complete collapse of European credit and industry. In these days, in great industrial states, this would mean a state of things worse than that of 1848,
and, irrespective of who were victors
in the war, many things might be completely swept away.The phrase, "many things might be swept away," is interpreted as intended by Lord Grey to convey to Austria a warning that monarchy
might be swept away.Perhaps Austria was too angerblinded to read between the lines,
but the inference is not obscure.
Moreover, the English diplomat is generally regarded as having delivered a prophetic utterance. Perhaps there is no more widely implanted idea in relation to the war than that it means the end of rule by inheritance.J. HIGBEE THERE
WITH THE PUNCHDisappointment over the jelly-fish pliability of the republican county committee pauses for an instant over the name of former Chairman J. E.Higbee, who presided over the farcical meeting after the manner of a man who has the sand of his convictions. From the first bang of the gavel it was apparent that there was a backbone in the chair. Too bad it wasn't "catching."WHAT THE FAIR MIGHT BECOMEIt is a hope rather than an expectation that we shall live to see a perfect fair week.The importance of that experience, enjoyed but twice within our recollection, is not a matter of personal pleasure and convenience. It goes directly to the possibility of making this one of the great fairs of the northwest.Here we have everything favorable to the enterprise. Rich territory, good railroad facilities, variety of industries and sufficient distance from the nearest important competition.

All the fair needs is a start.

Give us a few good years like the two which, following the reorganization, took the fair out of a hole $10,- 000 deep and put it on its feet.
Three or four good years, placing a surplus of $25,000 in the treasury,
would open up to the association possibilities for expansion vastly important to this community.The fair has done very well under constantly adverse circumstances. What could it not do under favorable circumstances!THREE TO ONEIn the interest of accuracy let it be stated that Mr. Gordon received three, instead of two, votes in the caucus of the Seventh district. The caucus stood three to one against him. Thus does the "convention system" of the "good old days" justify its claim to "fair representation."

Neighborly

A South Dakota state senator recently gave a new illustration of that fine saying of an ancient philosopher,
"Man was born for mutual assistance."A customer entered the small town barber shop.

"How soon can you cut my hair?"

he asked of the proprietor, who was seated in an easy chair, perusing the pages of a dime novel."Bill," said the barber, addressing his errand boy, "run over and tell the editor that I'd like my scissors
if he's got done editin' the paper. A gentleman is waitin' for a hair cut."

—Everybody's Magazine.

Fair Exchange

The military maneuver. All afternoon the attackers had attacked and the defenders defended, with conspicuous lack of incident or bravery. Operations were beginning to drag horribly when the white flag went up, says Answers.The officers in command of the attackers started in amazement.

"A flag of truce!" he exclaimed.

"What do they want?"

The sergeant major endeavored to cover up a smile."They say, sir," he reported,
"that, as it's tea time, they'd like to exchange a couple of privates for a can of condensed milk—if you can afford it!"

Middle Course

Senator Root was discussing the Mexican situation."Steer a middle course," he said to an extremist. "These extreme ideas are always wrong.""Thus, at a tea, one young girl asked another:"And where are you going this summer, dear?""From the way mother talks," was the reply, "you'd think we were going to Newport. From the way father talks you'd think we were going to starve. But I suppose we'll steer a middle course, as usual, and put in a fortnight at a $12 Atlantic City boarding house."—Washington Star.

Why He Missed It

Two men came running at top speed toward the station, where the train that would run them to town
in a few minutes was steaming ready to start. As they reached the station floor the whistle sounded and the train was off. Gasping for breath, the one said to the other with cheery good humor:"Eh, Jim, tha didna run fast enough.""Yea, Ah did," Jim instantly replied, "but Ah didna start soon enough."—Manchester Guardian.Quips and Cranks

The Invisible Seat

Former President Taft, at a lunch-
oon in Princeton, described the diet whereby he had reduced his weight seventy-five pounds."It has been an easy diet," he ended; "just green vegetables, non-fat meats and acid fruits—an easy diet. And it makes me feel as light and airy as the little man in the trolley car.""A little wisp of a man jumped up in a crowded car and gallantly offered his seat to a large, stout, comely woman.""She acknowledged with a pleasant smile his low bow and polite offer. Then she said:"Thanks so very much—but where did you get up from?"— Washington Star.

A Thrilling Event

H. E. Dunn used to be traveling passenger agent for a western railroad, but gave that up and went to a small town to live. Dunn frequently felt the need of excitement. Once, when he was really depressed with the monotony of his life, he saw a wildly excited crowd gathered on a vacant lot. Prominent citizens were there hopping up and down, gesticulating and shouting; and Dunn felt that the unexpected had happened and something was doing. He rushed to the lot and gasped out: "What's the matter?""Matter!" shouted a rampant citizen. "Matter? Why, we are going to have a swarm of bees."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.It isn't credence so much as con-
trastness which makes some men

ALL OVER BABYWhen Four Months Old. Pimples
Festered. Didn't Sleep Nights.
Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Healed Her Sore and Well.R. F. D. No. 2, Custer, Mich.—"Our little girl first broke out with eczema when she was about four months old. She was broken out all over in small red pimples. They festered in a short time and matter substance ran out of them. They itched all the time so we had to keep mittens on her hands. She didn't sleep nights at all; we were up nearly all night with her for eight months and she was so cross I had to hold her all the time."Remedies failed; everything we tried would do no good. She had the breaking out for eighteen months. So we got six cakes of Cuticura Soap and only used four cakes and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they cured her sore and well." (Signed) Mrs. James Moyer, Mar. 21, 1914.

week than I had the previous fifty-
one. We must have been to everything there is, except a church. Yesterday was Sunday, and I asked Mrs.
Sellmer about it, but she said people didn't go to church any more.""Maybe you wonder why I don't tell you about our crowd, but I guess
it's because I feel as if they didn't matter. I wouldn't say that to anybody in the world but to you, Brick and Bill, and if I hadn't promised to write you every single thing, I wouldn't even tell you, because they are so good to me. It sounds untrue to them, doesn't it? But you won't tell anybody, because you've nobody to tell! And besides, they could be different in a minute if they wanted to be; it isn't as if they were helpless.""Miss Sellmer is witty and talented, and from the way she treats me, I know she has a tender heart. And her mother is a perfect wonder of a manager, and never makes mistakes
except such as happen to be the fad
of the hour. And Mr. Edgerton Compton could be splendid, for he seems to know everything, and when we travel with him or go to the parks and all that, people do just as he says, as if he were a prince;
he has a magnificent way of showing money on porters and waiters and cabmen that is dazzling; and he holds himself perfectly without trying and dresses so that you are glad you're with him in a crowd; he knows what to do all the time about everything. But there he stops. I mean, he isn't trying to do anything that matters. Neither are any of the rest.""What they are working at now,
is all they expect to work at as long as they live—and it takes awfully hard work to keep up with their set.
They call it 'keeping in the swim,' and let me tell you what it reminds me of—a strong young steer out in a 'tank,' using all the strength he has just to keep on top of the water, instead of swimming to shore and going somewhere. Society people don't go anywhere; they use all their energy staying right where they are;
and if one of them loses grip and goes under—goodness!""I know what Mrs. Sellmer has set her heart on, because she has already begun instructing me in her ideals. She wants her daughter to marry a rich man, and Mr. Edgerton Compton isn't rich, he only looks like he is. Mrs. Sellmer feels that she's terribly poor, herself; it's the kind of poverty that has all it wants to eat and wear, but hasn't as many horses and servants as it wants.
It's just as hard on her as it would be on you if the bacon gave out and you couldn't go for more. Annabel
—that's Miss Sellmer—likes Mr.
Compton very, very much, but she feels like her mother about marrying a rich man, and I don't think he has much chance. One trouble is that he thinks he must marry a rich girl, so they just go on, loving each other and looking about for chances.""I feel like I oughtn't to be wasting my time telling about my friends
when there are all these wonderful lights and carpets and decorations and conveniences, so much more interesting. Whenever you want hot water, instead of bringing a bucketful from the spring and building a fire and sitting down to watch it simmer, you just turn a handle and out it comes,
smoking; and whenever you want ice-water, you touch a button and give a boy ten cents.""The funny thing to me is that Annabel and Mr. Compton both think they have to marry somebody rich, or not marry at all. They really don't know they could marry
each other, because imagining they would be able to keep the wolf from the door. That's because they can't imagine themselves living behind anything but a door on one of the 'best streets.' We know, don't we, Brick and Bill, that it takes mighty little to keep the coyote from the dugout! And there's something else we know that these people haven't dreamt of—that there's happiness and love in many and many a dugout. I don't know what's behind the doors on the 'best streets.'""We are not going straight on to Chicago. A gentleman has invited the Sellmers, which of course in-cludes me, to a house-party in the country not far from Kansas City.
He is a very rich man of middle age,
so they tell me, a widower, who is interested in our sex and particularly in Annabel Sellmer. Mr. Edgerton Compton isn't invited. You see,
he's a sort of rival—a poor rival.
This middle-aged man has known the Sellmers a long time, and he has been trying to win Annabel for a year or two. If it hadn't been for Mr. Compton she'd have married his house before now, I gather. The house is said to be immense, in a splendid estate near the river. I am so excited when I think of going there for ten days. There are to be fifty guests and the other forty-nine are invited as a means of getting Annabel under his roof. Won't
I feel like a little girl in an old English novel! The best of it is that nobody will bother me—I'm too poor to be looked at a second time. I mean, what they call poor. Sometimes I laugh when I'm alone, for I feel like I'm a gold mine filled with rich ore that nobody has discovered.
Remember the 'fool's gold' we used to see among the granite mountains?
I think the gold that lies on the surface must always be fool's gold. The name of the country-house we are to visit is the same as that of the man who owns it—"Wilfred Compton held the letter
closer to the light."Brick Willock spoke impatiently:
"No use to stare at that there word
—we couldn't make it out, I guess
she got it wrong, first, then wrote it out. Just go ahead."Bill suggested, "I think the first letter is an 'S.'"Wilfred scrutinized the name closely."Besides," said Willock, "we know none of them high people, the name wouldn't be nothing to us—
and her next letter will likely have it more'n once."Wilfred resumed the letter: "I must tell you good-by, now, for Annabel's maid has come to help me
dress for dinner, and it takes longer than it did to do up the washing, at the cove; and is more tiresome. But I like it. I like these fine, soft, beautiful things. I like the big world,
and I would like to live in it forever and ever, if you could bring the dugout and be near enough for me to run in, any time of the day. I wish I could run in this minute, and tell you the thousands and thousands of things I'll never have time to write.""Your loving, adoring, halfhomesick, half-bewildered, somewhat dizzy little girl.""LAHOMA."
"P. S. Nobody has been able to tell from word or look of mine that I have ever been surprised at a single thing I have heard or seen. You may be quite sure of that."

"I bet you!" cried Willock ad-

BY UNKNOWN TRAMP SHOT THROUGH LEG

Henry Cook, aged 25, Everett, Mich., walked into La Crosse from La Crescent, Minn., this morning with a bullet hole through his right leg.

He was "beating his way" back from the harvest fields and says that while waiting for a freight train north of La Crosse and south of Wiltona, Minn., he received the bullet. It entered the right side of the leg above the knee, going through the fleshy part of the member.

The wound will not prove serious. Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Maxwell, of Beloit, Wis., are making an eight-day motorcycle tour of Indiana.

SHORTEN SCHOOL BECAUSE OF FAIR

Normal Will Cut Each Period 20 Minutes to End Day at Noon

Prof. F. A. Cotton announced at general assembly today that beginning Wednesday on account of the fair, school at the normal will begin at 8 o'clock and dismiss at noon. The periods will be shortened by 20 minutes and all the work will be put in through the forenoon. This will give all the students a chance to attend the fair while at the same time not neglecting their work.

This year's normal school lecture course comprises five excellent numbers, the first of which is Mlle. Jenny Dufau, the great French soprano, appearing October 2. The other numbers are Dr. Mathews, on November 9; Mr. C. Van Vliet, January 11; George Hamlin and Col. S. S. McClure. The dates of the last two are not yet decided.

The season prices of this course are as follows: All students $1, others than students $1.50. Reserved seats may be had at Hebbard's drug store for 50 cents.

ELSEN-PHILIPS AUTO EXHIBIT

One of the most interesting and at the same time educational automobile exhibits in the big auto tent at the fair grounds is that of Elsen and Philips, La Crosse agents for the Studebaker car.

One part of the exhibit is the disassembled rear axle and transmission of the "Four" showing the construction and accessibility as well as the Timken Roller Bearings. Another part of the exhibit is planned to show the almost perfect distribution of weight of the Studebaker car. The four wheels of the car are mounted on scales, showing a weight of 688 pounds on the right front wheel, 685 pounds on the left front wheel, 775 pounds on the right rear wheel, and 780 pounds on the left rear wheel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—It developed today that George E. Mrs. Murphy preferred the charge against him, and it is believed a quarrel over it led to the double tragedy.

BRITISH AVIATORS BOMBARD COLOGNE

ANTWERP, Sept. 23.—British aviators have dropped bombs on the Dicksdorff aviation ground at Cologne, setting fire to one of the sheds used to house Zeppelins.

The newspaper Handelsblad says that the aviators, five in number, flew in company across Belgian territory into Germany and, after dropping the bombs, successfully made their escape. Near Antwerp one of the aviators met with an accident and was forced to descend. A troop of German Uhlans started to capture him, but he was rescued by a Belgian armored automobile.

The extent of the damage done in Cologne is not yet known here.

WILSON MEN WIN

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 23.—Slow returns being received today from yesterday's primaries indicate that practically all of the democratic congressional delegation of Wilson men have been renominated. In Hudson county, where Governor Fielder's forces were arrayed against those of Naval Officer Witten in the democratic primary, the result seems to be in doubt. The state leadership hinges upon the outcome.

Saved by Gulls.

Salt Lake City, more than 700 miles inland and 5,000 feet above the level of the sea, has a monument to seagulls. It commemorates the fact that in 1848 the gulls checked a plague of locusts, or grasshoppers, which were destroying the grain crops of the Mormon pioneers who had just settled in the state. The only way to account for the birds' presence so far inland seems to be that the dense clouds of flying insects attracted their eyes, causing them to follow in the wake of the pest.—Exchange.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 23.—Virginia voted dry yesterday. State wide prohibition goes into effect November 1, 1915, according to practically complete returns today of the special election on the liquor question.

The "white ribboners" have a majority of from 32,000 to 35,000. Richmond, Alexandria and Norfolk were the only large cities voting "wet."

Temperance forces were jubilant today. Plans were started for a day of celebration and thanksgiving in all churches next Monday.

Surprises of the election were "dry" majorities in Petersburg, Newport News, Roanoke, Portsmouth and Lynchburg.

The temperance law will prohibit the sale of liquor, even in clubs and also prohibit manufacture of spirituous liquors. Wine, cider and beer may be manufactured, but must be shipped out of the state. Loss of $700,000 annually in liquor revenues to the state is estimated.

EXPLAINS GERMAN ATTITUDE TOWARD THE PRESENT WAR

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg Repeats Allegation Germany Was Forced to Fight

EXPLAINS VIOLATION OF BELGIUM

Says Kaiser Only Fore-stalled France Which Was Planning Invasion by Neutral State

CHARGE HIDEOUS ATROCITIES

Explains Destruction of Louvain and Other Belgian Towns by Alleging Brutal Reception

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—A signed statement issued by Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg, German chancellor, at the order of the kaiser, was received here today. The statement, which explains the attitude assumed by Germany in the present war, was prepared for the American press.

Blame the Other
After repeating Germany's declaration that Russia and England forced the war, despite the kaiser's attempts to preserve peace, the chancellor explains that Germany invaded Belgium in order to forestall France, which is alleged to have been contemplating German invasion through the neutral state. Discussing the English attitude, the chancellor says:

"Already England must begin to see that she has made a miscalculation, since Germany is winning the mastery over her foe. Therefore, England now tries to injure Germany by the most petty means, striking at our commerce and our colonies, while, regardless of the inevitable consequences for the common civilization of our white race, England has provoked Japan to a predatory raid upon our colony at Kiau Chau, and has led the negroes of Africa to battle against the Germans in our colonies there."

Charge Atrocities

"After destroying all of Germany's means of communication across the sea, England went further and opened an all-round campaign of lies. Thus you Americans are told that German troops have burned down Belgian villages and cities, but you are not told that Belgian women gouged out the eyes of our helpless wounded men lying on the battlefields. The officials of Belgian cities invited officers of our army to eat with them and then shot them dead across the table. Contrary to all laws of humanity, the whole civil population of Belgium was called to arms and Belgian civilians, after their first friendly reception of our troops, shot them down from behind with concealed weapons and committed all manner of horrible cruelties. Belgian women have cut the throats of German soldiers whom they had received in their houses, after these soldiers unsuspectingly had laid down to sleep."

Dum Dum Bullets Alleged

"England will also have told you nothing of these dum dum bullets, which the English and the French, despite all formal conventions and all pretenses of humanity, employed against us. These dum dum bullets have been shown here in the original packages, just as they were found in the possession of English and French prisoners of war."

"His Majesty, the Emperor, has authorized me to say all this and to declare that he has complete confidence in the sense of justice of the American people, who will not let themselves be hoodwinked by the campaign of lies which our foes are waging against us."

Allege German Atrocities

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Declaring he had himself seen two young Belgian women who had suffered at the hands of German soldiers and that they were being cared for at a Paris hospital that they might be restored to health and brought to America as proof of the charges of atrocities committed by the Germans, Dr. Frederick S. Mason of New York today told of some of the incidents called to his attention while in France.

Dr. Mason said that he was told by a high French official, whose name he was not at liberty to state, that Lord Kitchener, the British war minister, was responsible for the sudden change in the French cabinet soon after the war began. He said that according to his information the British commander wired during the battle of Mons for a French commander to send reinforcements of 40,000 troops. The British were holding the left wing, but had been attacked by a force twice their number. It was not until 48 hours later that aid was started on the British, who had saved themselves by retreating with heavy losses.

Kitchener Demanded Punishment

"Lord Kitchener demanded that the French commander be court-martialed," said Dr. Mason. "He was a protégé of the minister of war, however, and the latter refused. Kitchener made a secret trip to Paris and practically threatened to withdraw the British force unless action was taken. President Poincaré then forced the resignation of his cabinet to meet the demands of the British war minister. The officer was demoted and put in charge of an unimportant station."

F. E. French recently rode his motorcycle from Middleton, Ohio, to Toledo in five hours and 40 minutes. The best train time between these two cities is said to be five hours and 16 minutes.

"Whys" of European War Moves Explained By Military Expert

BY J. W. T. MASON
NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—11 a. m.

The destruction of the British cruisers by German submarines demonstrates the wisdom of Germany's naval strategy in keeping her line of battleships safely protected by land fortifications during the early stages of the war.

Had the British vessels been 14-ern dreadnoughts instead of 12-14 and thirteen year old secondary cruisers, Great Britain's numerical supremacy at sea would have been seriously reduced. To accomplish this is the dominant idea of Germany's naval plans. Great Britain possesses twenty-five dreadnought battleships and cruisers in the North sea and Germany has seventeen. If the German submarines could steal among the enemy's first line fleet, not many exploits such as caused the triple tragedy in the North sea would be essayed courage and daring for torpedoes in dreadnought strength.

While the German seamen have demonstrated they possess the necessary courage and daring for torpedoes to work far from their base, the chances of seriously depleting British naval superiority by this method are remote. Yesterday's success of the German submarines cannot have been the first attempt. Many failures must have been registered previously.

Nevertheless the use of submarines, followed later, perhaps, by night torpedo boat attacks, must continue to be Germany's initiative at sea for some time to come. Under present conditions of relative strength, it will result in almost certain disaster to the German fleet to steam forth and invite a surface conflict. All the possibilities of submarine success must first be exhausted.

REPORT CAPTURE OF BOSNIAN FORT

Combined Serbian and Montenegrin Armies Claim Victories Denied at Vienna

NISH, Sept. 23.—The war office today announced that the combined Serbian and Montenegrin armies have captured the fortress of Fotcha, which was enveloped and masked when the march against Sarajevo was begun. They have also taken the entrenched camps at Ragatzka, Pratzka, and Odsak, on the direct line southeast of Sarajevo.

Earlier in the day the war office issued a statement saying that the Austrians, who have been holding a line running from Ljubovia to Losnitza, have been routed with heavy losses.

VIENNA, Via Rome, Sept. 23.—The war office today denied positively the Serbian-Montenegrin claims of the taking of the Sarajevo and of a disaster to the Austrian army near Losnitza.

CALL PEACE MEET

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—The national executive committee of the socialist party today issued an invitation to socialists of the world to meet in Washington, D. C., in an extraordinary peace session of the international socialist congress, and offered to pay the expenses of five delegates from each nation.

Copenhagen or The Hague are suggested as suitable European cities if the European socialists prefer to hold the conference on that side of the water.

WANT TO BUY ARMS

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Commission agents, it was learned today, have for several days been trying to place orders with local gun dealers for 100,000 rifles and 50,000 rounds of ammunition. They refuse to state for whom they were placing the order. So far as is known they were unsuccessful. Well known dealers say that it would be impossible to fill the orders now. Almost the entire stock of rifles on hand in the United States was sold to Mexicans when the embargo on arms to that country was lifted by the president.

PLANS U. S. BALLOON RACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—A "Made in America" balloon race to take the place of the international event which was called off because of the war, is planned now by prominent American aeronauts. Leo Stevens is promoting the event, which will start from either Pittsfield, Mass., or Point Breeze, Pa., October 7. The Aero Club of America will sanction the event.

haunted, however slim possibility of vital success may be.

The strategy of the German general staff in the Aisne battle is obviously puzzling to the allied commanders. Field Marshal Sir John French's latest report testified to this by its confession that for a considerable time after the battle began the allies believed the Germans were fighting only a rear guard action.

The reason for such a conclusion was expressed in this column at the time the Germans were known to have entrenched north of the Aisne. It was then explained that disaster would result if the invaders waited too long before retreating because of the danger to their flank—a condition in which the allies were saved at the Marne by the protection of the Paris forts on their left and the permanent frontier fortifications on their right.

The diplomatic necessity for holding fast to French territory, even on the defensive, as long as possible, doubtless has led to the risks the Germans are taking by continuing to give battle along the Aisne. Strategically, their position is precarious, for if the allies succeed in outflanking a German retreat more hasty than the one from the Marne will become necessary with the allies better prepared to take it up.

Nevertheless the value of entering the peace conference after the war either direct from France or from the immediate border, must outweigh in the minds of the kaiser's advisers the risk of holding the Aisne positions to the uttermost second. Sir John French's continued surprise at the strategy of the Germans along the Aisne is very strong evidence that statesmanship and not military necessity is now influencing Germany's operations in the field.

U. S. ROUSED BY DIPLOMAT'S TALK

Will Follow Course Pursued in Carden Case with Baron von Schoen

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—In line with the Sir Lionel Carden interview and the criticism directed at A. Rustem Bey, Turkish ambassador, the state department today had brought to its attention the interview given out by Baron Wilhelm von Schoen, former secretary of the German embassy at Tokio, in which in substance von Schoen predicted war between the United States and Japan.

Secretary Bryan declined to say whether the same course would be pursued in von Schoen's case as followed in the Carden and Bey episodes.

After conferring with President Wilson this afternoon, Bryan declared that "nothing had been done in the von Schoen case," but that inference from his conversation was that the department expects to take formal action.

"All of the lower class natives of Japan believe war between Japan and the United States is inevitable," was the statement of Baron von Schoen. He said there "is intense hatred" of Americans and America among the Japanese masses. When the Japanese troops were being mobilized for the war against Germany, he said, many of the natives thought Japan was going to strike the United States.

"Should both Japan and England be victorious in the present war, I believe the danger to the United States will be great," the German attaché declared.

"Germany's representatives in the United States from Count von Bernstorff down are using sinister methods to stir up bad feeling between this country and Japan," Yosuke Matsuoka, secretary of the Japanese embassy, declared today, commenting on the statements attributed to von Schoen.

ASK DISMISSAL OF EDWARD ACTION

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—United States District Attorney Cline today had for consideration a bundle of affidavits supporting a plea that the white slavery indictment against William Rufus Edwards be dropped. Mrs. Edwards declares that since her husband's indictment on the charge of transporting Ada Cox, a stenographer, to St. Paul for immoral purposes, his hair has turned white, though he is a young man, and his mind has become a blank.

SAYS CONDITIONS MUST BE CHANGED

Senator Lodge Declares Early Peace in Europe Is Not Possible

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—"Any ideas of early peace in Europe which would leave conditions the same as they were in July before the outbreak of the war should be dismissed immediately," declared Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, historian and authority on international law, who returned here today aboard the White Star liner Olympic.

"I am chiefly interested in having the United States maintain a strict neutrality," said Lodge. "The time may come when our good offices may be used effectively for the restoration of peace, but that time is not yet here. The talk about peace just now is originated by German agents for the purpose of influencing public opinion here and elsewhere."

Senator Lodge declared that either Germany or the allies must win and dictate peace terms.

The Olympic carried 2,055 passengers, including the greatest number of notables to arrive here on a single liner in months. They included Daniel G. Reid, George F. Baker, Clarence H. Mackay, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Nicholas F. Brady and Henry Phipps, retired steel magnate.

Mackay declared it was "now up to the United States."

"A most wonderful opportunity to secure new business and make new friends has come to this country," he said. "I believe that any losses through the disruption of trade and commerce will be made up speedily once peace is restored."

MARCONI COMPANY EXPLAINS STAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The Marconi company announced today it is preparing for a suit in the federal courts to determine by judicial decision the controversy between the navy department and the Marconi company over the Siasconset statement.

In a statement issued today the Marconi company contended that it has in no way attempted to evade the neutrality laws. The statement, in explaining the controversy said: "The message from the British cruiser Suffolk, so much criticized by the navy department, was one addressed to a private person in New York, asking that fresh beef, potatoes and neutrality newspapers be sent to the Suffolk on the high seas. This would no more be a violation of neutrality than would the shipment of guns, ammunition, powder, flour or wheat to any of the countries."

The Marconi company emphasized the fact that it is an "American corporation, and that for the navy department to hamper its commercial business is to deny to Americans their constitutional rights."

NEW WAR SONG CAPTURES BRITAIN

LONDON, Sept. 14.—By Mail to New York.—All England is singing a new war song. It is by Sir Frederick Cowen and Harold Regbie and makes a strong appeal for enlistment in the army. One of the verses of the song, which is entitled "Fall In," follows:

"How will you fare, sonny, how will you fare
In the far off winter night,
When you sit by the fire in an old man's chair,
And your neighbors talk of the fight?"

Will you sink away, as if it were a blow,
Your old head shamed and bent?
Or say, 'I was not with the first to go,
But I went, thank God, I went?'"

MASONIC SIGN IS SAVIOR OF FIFTY

OSTEND, Sept. 14.—(By mail to New York.)—A Masonic sign, given by a Belgian resident of Louvain, and immediately recognized and honored by a German officer, saved fifty Belgians from death in Louvain. All had been arrested charged with shooting at the Germans. The Belgian Mason, while facing the firing squad, gave a certain sign, and the German officer immediately engaged him in conversation. He explained masonically that he was not guilty and not a single one of the party had been guilty of any activities. The German immediately ordered them all released.

T. R. LEAPS ON WOOD

BOONE, Ia., Sept. 23.—Dismissing Senator Cummins with a word, Col. Roosevelt attacked Congressman Woods in his home district here today and said that Woods, although posing as a progressive for home consumption, was at heart a reactionary, and that as chairman of the republican national congressional committee he would support Cannon in Illinois, Penrose in Pennsylvania and reactionaries in other states. Roosevelt reached here at noon and was entertained at luncheon by the commercial club and then escorted to the armory, where he delivered a characteristic Roosevelt speech to a large crowd. Roosevelt endorsed the candidacy of George C. White for governor and Casper Schenck for United States senator.

ENGLAND CLAMORS FOR SEA REVENGE

Demand Retaliation for the Loss of 1,624 Men on Three Cruisers Sunk by Germans

FIVE SUBMARINES DID DAMAGE

Seven Torpedoes Were Fired and Five of Them Found Their Marks

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Demands for speedy vengeance on the Germans for sinking three British armored cruisers are voiced by most of the newspapers today. It is suggested that, while England has many times as many submarines as have the Germans, they have yet failed to demonstrate their worth. As a result of the agitation now going on in every part of England, it is believed these craft will at least make an attempt to even the scores.

Over 1,500 Dead

England was still without details of the Cressy-Aboukir-Hogue tragedy today. It seems certain more than 1,500 of the 2,100 members of the crews have perished. It is apparently established that the disaster took place only a short distance from the Hook of Holland, as many of the survivors have been landed at Mulden, Holland, for trans-shipment to England.

There were five submarines in the raiding party. The first knowledge that they were in the vicinity was when the Aboukir was suddenly lifted almost entirely out of the water and then seemed to break into pieces. The Cressy and the Hogue rushed to the rescue and the midshipmen and a good portion of the Aboukir's complement had been picked up when, with a roar, torpedoes exploded under the hull of both rescuing ships and they also sank in less than an hour.

Survivors Can't Talk

The survivors not landed in Holland have been brought to Harwich and Parkstone. None has been allowed to talk.

According to the Daily News naval expert the admiralty has learned that the main body of the German fleet is carefully stowed away in the sheltered harbor and under the protection of land guns. The channels leading to these harbors are so strewn with mines, the expert says, that it is an absolute impossibility to get through them unscathed.

Fired Seven Torpedoes

Members of the Aboukir, who were rescued, declared the Germans fired seven torpedoes and that five scored hits. The Aboukir was struck simultaneously forward and aft, and practically blown to pieces. Her boilers exploded, adding to the terrible nature of the disaster, hardly a member of her crew being uninjured. The Hogue and Cressy, believing their sister ship had struck a mine, steamed speedily to her assistance. The Hogue was putting over her boats when a torpedo struck her squarely amidship. Two torpedoes struck the Cressy below her water line.

The latest estimate of the dead is 1,624 and included are believed to be practically all of the officers of the three ships.

Say French Retreat

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—After suffering tremendous losses, the French center is retreating, the Berlin foreign office notified the German embassy today. It declared that Verdun was successfully bombarded and that the French offensive is weakening.

The radiogram from Berlin follows: "The French offensive is weakening. French losses are enormous. Their center is retreating."

"Verdun was successfully bombarded. The effect of German mortars was tremendous."

"Paris newspapers show a downcast spirit. Colonel Roussel comments in the Liberte that the actual provisioning of the German army was quite unique in the history of warfare."

"The English cruiser Pegasus destroyed the German surveying vessel Moeve, but was attacked and sunk by the German cruiser Koenigsberg."

The part of the dispatch telling of the bombardment of Verdun left the German embassy in doubt whether the city has fallen or whether it was simply being bombarded by the German troops with apparent success.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 16, 1914.

Dr. H. Clay Evenson, La Crosse, Wis.

Dear Doctor:—This is to advise you that I am greatly pleased with the efficient manner in which you rendered your professional services to me some few days since.

When one of my lenses broke late in the day and moreover it was necessary for me to attend important affairs and business that same evening, I hardly knew which way to turn in order to secure assistance, not realizing for the moment that you had the up-to-date manufacturing shop for the convenience of those unfortunate individuals like myself requiring quick and correct work.

However you certainly did fix me up promptly and with the most satisfactory lenses I have ever had. It is now rather a pleasure to wear glasses you fitted.

Those finding it beneficial to wear glasses are fortunate in having such well equipped plant located in this city where they can obtain rapid service and accurate workmanship upon short notice.

Thanking you for your attention to my needs and with best wishes for your continued success, I am

Yours very truly,

F. A. S. PRICE, Vice President.

A letter you should read because I can do equally as well for you.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

ENGLAND—The latest list of the lost in the British naval disaster in the North sea places the number at 1,624. Unofficial, but authentic sources declare the British have succeeded in turning the German right wing in France. It is expected the Germans will again be forced to retreat.

FRANCE—The war office believes the Germans are already withdrawing many of their troops from the fighting line in the north. It is expected they will again be compelled to retreat within a very short time. The German right is already partly enveloped and is retreating.

BELGIUM—Antwerp reports that British aviators have flown well into Germany and have dropped bombs on the aviation field near Cologne, setting afire a shed used by the Zeppelins. The Belgian army, under King Albert in person, is again actively harassing the Germans.

RUSSIA—The war office says the crushing of the Austrian offense continues and that many Austrians are deserting to the Russians. It is admitted the Russians are withdrawing from East Prussia.

SERBIA—The Serbian war office announces that the Austrians have again been crushingly defeated in another battle along a line extending from Losnitza to Ljubovja.

MONTENEGRO—The war office confirms the report that Sarajevo, capital of Bosnia, has been captured by the combined Serbian-Montenegrin army.

GERMANY—It is stated that there is still little change in the battle situation in France. Fighting continues with the Germans slowly gaining the advantage. In East Prussia the Russians have been driven back on the border with heavy losses and the attempted siege of Konigsberg has been abandoned.

AUSTRIA—The war office positively denies that Sarajevo has been taken by the Serbians, or that it is in danger. Claims of another Serbian victory are specifically denied. While admitting sporadic cases of dysentery and cholera among the troops at the front it is denied that there is any epidemic.

ITALY—The anti-neutrality demonstrations continue but there is no present indication of the government changing its policy.

War Bulletins

PARIS.—Soldiers from the front say that one of the reasons why so many of the British and French are wounded in the feet and legs is that the Germans dig their trenches so deep that their riflemen shoot right along the ground.

LONDON.—There is a great demand for immediate jam at all hospitals at which wounded soldiers are quartered. They seem to be able to consume an unlimited amount of bread and jam, and everything possible is being done to satisfy their appetites.

ROME.—There being no divorce law in Italy, the custom has been for men desiring to untie the marriage knot to become naturalized Hungarians. Many took this step, just before the war broke out and have since been compelled to join the army of their new country.

LONDON.—Mrs. M. Wilkins of New Road, Chatham, has seven sons serving in the army, one in the Royal Marines and one in the Canadian field artillery. Her entire family is serving with the colors, as her husband was called for service in the royal fleet reserve.

PARIS.—Owing to the censorship French newspapers are printing each other's leading articles in order to fill up their empty columns.

LONDON.—An automobile used for recruiting purposes bears this sign: "The quickest route to Berlin is via the Wimbledon recruiting office."

SPEEDER IS FINED IN POLICE COURT

Tells of Recovery

Neglected throat trouble, and continued coughs and colds, often weaken the system. Investigate reports of recoveries brought about by Eckman's Alternative. Here is one:—
Convent of St. Anne, Sanford, Fla.
"Gentlemen:—In February, 1911, four doctors examined my throat and pronounced the necessity of an operation. Having heard at Peekskill, N. Y., Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Francis, where I was visiting, of Eckman's Alternative, I determined as a last resort to try it. After taking four or five bottles large pieces of diseased tissue came away. I continued the Alternative, to my grateful and daily relief. In ten months I was restored to perfect health. I would like them to see and hear from my own lips. If they so desire, all I would say of it." (Abbreviated)

BOLD COSSACK GOT ANGRY—KILLED 11

PETROGRAD, Sept. 19.—(By mail to New York.)—Although he received nine wounds, in the chest and back and lost a finger a few weeks ago, Kozma Krjuteh-koff, a cossack, who attacked twenty-seven Uhlans single-handed, has returned to the front and is again with his regiment.

Krjuteh-koff regards his wounds, inflicted by Uhlans lances, with contempt.

The cossack killed eleven of the twenty-seven men against whom he fought alone, and was standing out against the rest single-handed when five comrades came up and assisted him.

"The Uhlans thought I was cornered," said Krjuteh-koff, "but I gave them no time to attack me. An officer tried to cut me down, but I hit him over the head. His helmet protected him and then I got angry and killed him. They were charging me with lances, so I seized one too and drove it into one after another. Finally five comrades arrived, and the Germans who were not killed or wounded fled."

MANY WATCH FREE ATTRACTIONS

Entertainment in Front of Grand Stand Meets with Approval of All Visitors

La Crosse went to the fair yesterday.

Clear skies returned at noon, the weather took a slightly warmer turn and the result was shown in the gate receipts. More than 6,000 people entered the turnstiles at both gates, and although the greatest number of visitors were people from home, yet many of the farmers and their families attended.

A wet, heavy track which prevented horse racing, and a misapprehension to Miss Catherine Stinson, aviatrix, disappointed the huge crowds, but there was not a murmur as they visited the hundred and one other attractions on the grounds.

Free Attractions

At 3 o'clock the grand stand was filled with persons watching the free attractions. The De Monieo and Fosto troupe of acrobats and a trained dog and pony act entertained for an hour and a half.

Judging began yesterday in the various exhibitions. C. K. Kennedy, Grand Rapids, Mich., is judging the horses; C. F. Patterson, University of Minnesota, is judging the beef cattle while A. C. Costerhuis, college of agriculture, Madison, is picking out the blue ribbon dairy cattle. In these branches are some of the best animals seen in any fairs of the northwest.

Prof. Moore Here

Frank Kleinheinz, also of Madison, is judging sheep; J. M. Stewart, Ainsworth, Ia., is judging swine, and E. H. Hoffman, La Crosse poultry man, is selecting the prize chicks.

R. A. Moore, Madison, has been selected to judge farm grains and the corn contest; A. L. Cram, Galesville, Wis., is judging farm and garden products and vegetables; A. J. Phillips, West Salem, is judging the fruits.

The dairy products are being judged by F. E. Carswell, state dairy and food expert, Richland Center, Wis.

Mrs. G. H. Howe, Eau Claire, Wis., is judging the culinary department. Miss Nellie A. King, St. Paul, Minn., is selecting the best of the domestic goods for prizes, while Mrs. T. H. Spence, La Crosse, is judging the art work.

The Straggler.

A certain Confederate private, whose name might be Jim Buckalew, was in the foremost lines at Petersburg when the mine was exploded under the Elliott salient. After he had gone skyward a piece he returned and fell in the crater, and later was dug out from under several feet of dirt, alive. "I'm plum disgraced," he confided to the nurse in the hospital. "When that mine went off I was back from the trench a bit. Consequently I was just goin' up in the air when the other fellows was comin' down—and when I passed 'em every last one of 'em cursed me an' said: 'Hey, yu damned straggler, yu, why don't yu keep up with the troop?'"

BRITISH ADMIRAL DID OWN SCOUTING

Ran with Submarine Right Into Midst of German Fleet at Helgoland

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, commander of the British North sea fleet, did a clever bit of personal scouting with a submarine just before the battle of Helgoland, according to Captain Skelley of the British oil tanker San Lorenzo, which arrived here yesterday.

Captain Skelley's ship, with 15,000 tons of oil aboard, was supplying the British North sea fleet when the naval battle off Helgoland was fought.

"Admiral Jellicoe wanted to locate the enemy," said Skelley. "He took personal charge of a submarine and set out from under the protecting guns of his own fleet straight toward the sight of Helgoland. The little submarine dove under water just before sighting the German ships. Fearlessly disregarding floating mines he must have known were all about, Sir John went smack into or under the enemy's territory. Much of the time not even the periscope was showing."

"After some time the submarine was ordered to the top. She found herself in the midst of the German scout cruisers behind the highlands of Helgoland. The little diver got her bearings, dove once more and felt her way back to the fleet."

Clever Deception.

Men who craned their necks and hustled against each other to get a look at the girl on exhibition "in one of the store windows were given the laugh by women in the crowd. The fluttering of the girl's parasol and the blowing of her dress convinced the men that they were looking at a "living model," and it was not until they had gazed at it for some time that they discovered they had been fooled. By arrangements of fans the breeze gently blew the gown worn by the wax figure, and also her parasol. Her hair was blown about her face in a most bewitching fashion and more than one man exclaimed, "Isn't she a peach!" and discovered his error when the women in the crowd snickered.—Worcester Post.

About 125 riders attended the annual outing of the Elmira (N. Y.) Motorcycle club, held at Happy Thought cottage.

RODE IN CHARGE WITH ONLY HAMMER

PARIS, Sept. 23.—(By Mail to New York.)—Anxious to get into the fight against the Germans, the blacksmiths of the sixth dragoon guardsmen of the British forces, accompanied the cavalrymen on a charge, armed only with a hammer, according to stories told by the guardsmen who were in Paris.

These men came to the capital for remounts. They declared that in one of their charges the blacksmith grabbed his huge hammer, mounted a horse and rode with them, wielding his weapon with deadly effect.

The British and German artillery engaged in one duel at a distance of not more than 500 yards, the guardsmen said.

"Curing Drug Habit"

"If a drug fiend wants to quit quickly, let him commit a crime that will send him to Waupun," half-jokingly remarked Dr. Rock Sleyster, former physician of the state prison. Most experienced physicians hold that sudden and complete removal of a habit forming drug is dangerous to the victim. In ordinary circumstances it undoubtedly is. At Waupun, however, it has been the invariable practice of Dr. Sleyster, and he never saw even so much as an alarming symptom. Not once did he give an ounce of whiskey or a fractional grain dose of cocaine, morphine, or other similar drug.

His explanation is interesting and suggestive. A drug habit is mostly a mental habit. So long as the patient thinks he requires a drug, he does. In ordinary institutions, particularly in private hospitals and sanatoria, he expects some consideration. But Waupun isn't an ordinary institution. The first step in treatment begins when the outside gate clangs shut. The prisoner knows that with that gong-like sound the death knell has been sounded upon his ordinary "rights."

"We understand criminal nature, and convicts know that we understand them. They quit trying to coax us with whining that enlists sympathy outside. At the same time they quit sympathizing with themselves. It's wonderful how that shot bolt in the prison gate stiffens up their spinal columns.

"When they are told they can't have drugs and whiskey, they know that they can't. Knowing that they can't, they adapt themselves to the change and accept the rule.

"The ordinary drug fiend may collapse upon sudden complete withdrawal of the drug. The collapse may be real and most alarming to the physician. There has never been a collapse at Waupun from the same cause.

"It's interesting to observe how many of our inmates arrive in an intoxicated condition. The officers bringing them are frequently most sympathetic and cannot resist the appeals for 'just one more drink' before they are shut off for years or for life. If the same brand of sympathy were allowed to rule inside the institution Waupun would be in a fine mess."

CABLE FRENCH VERSION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—In a cablegram from Bordeaux giving in detail the progress of the fighting the French embassy was informed today that the "enemy reoccupied Domvire, south of Blomont, Nomeny and Villers, north of Nancy."

KILL WOLF CUBS, THE PROGENY OF KILLERS OF THIRTY-ONE SHEEP

Somewhere in the hills around Mound Prairie, Minn., is a pair of wolves and in the possession of the county of Houston are the pelt of the two half-grown wolf cubs.

The cubs were taken by Casper Fetch and Harry Eberhard, young Minnesota farmers, in a long hunt following the killing of thirty sheep in the neighborhood of Mound Prairie. William Eberhard lost twenty-five sheep and his neighbor, Tobias Kroedler, woke up one morning to find five of his flock gone. George Hegge was more fortunate, losing but one.

The parent wolves are still at large, although the efforts of half of the young men of Mound Prairie have been directed toward their capture. After several days of hunting, Fetch and Eberhard located the den of the wolves and waited. One of the cubs was shot when making for the hole and the other was killed with a club when attempting to escape.

But the real marauders, the parents, are still at large.

BELGIANS AGAIN RAID FOE'S LINES

ANTWERP, Sept. 23.—The Belgian army under King Albert again is raiding the German lines to the south. The Germans are withdrawing the bulk of their forces for action in the south and the Belgians are taking advantage of this fact to make another raid toward their lines of communication.

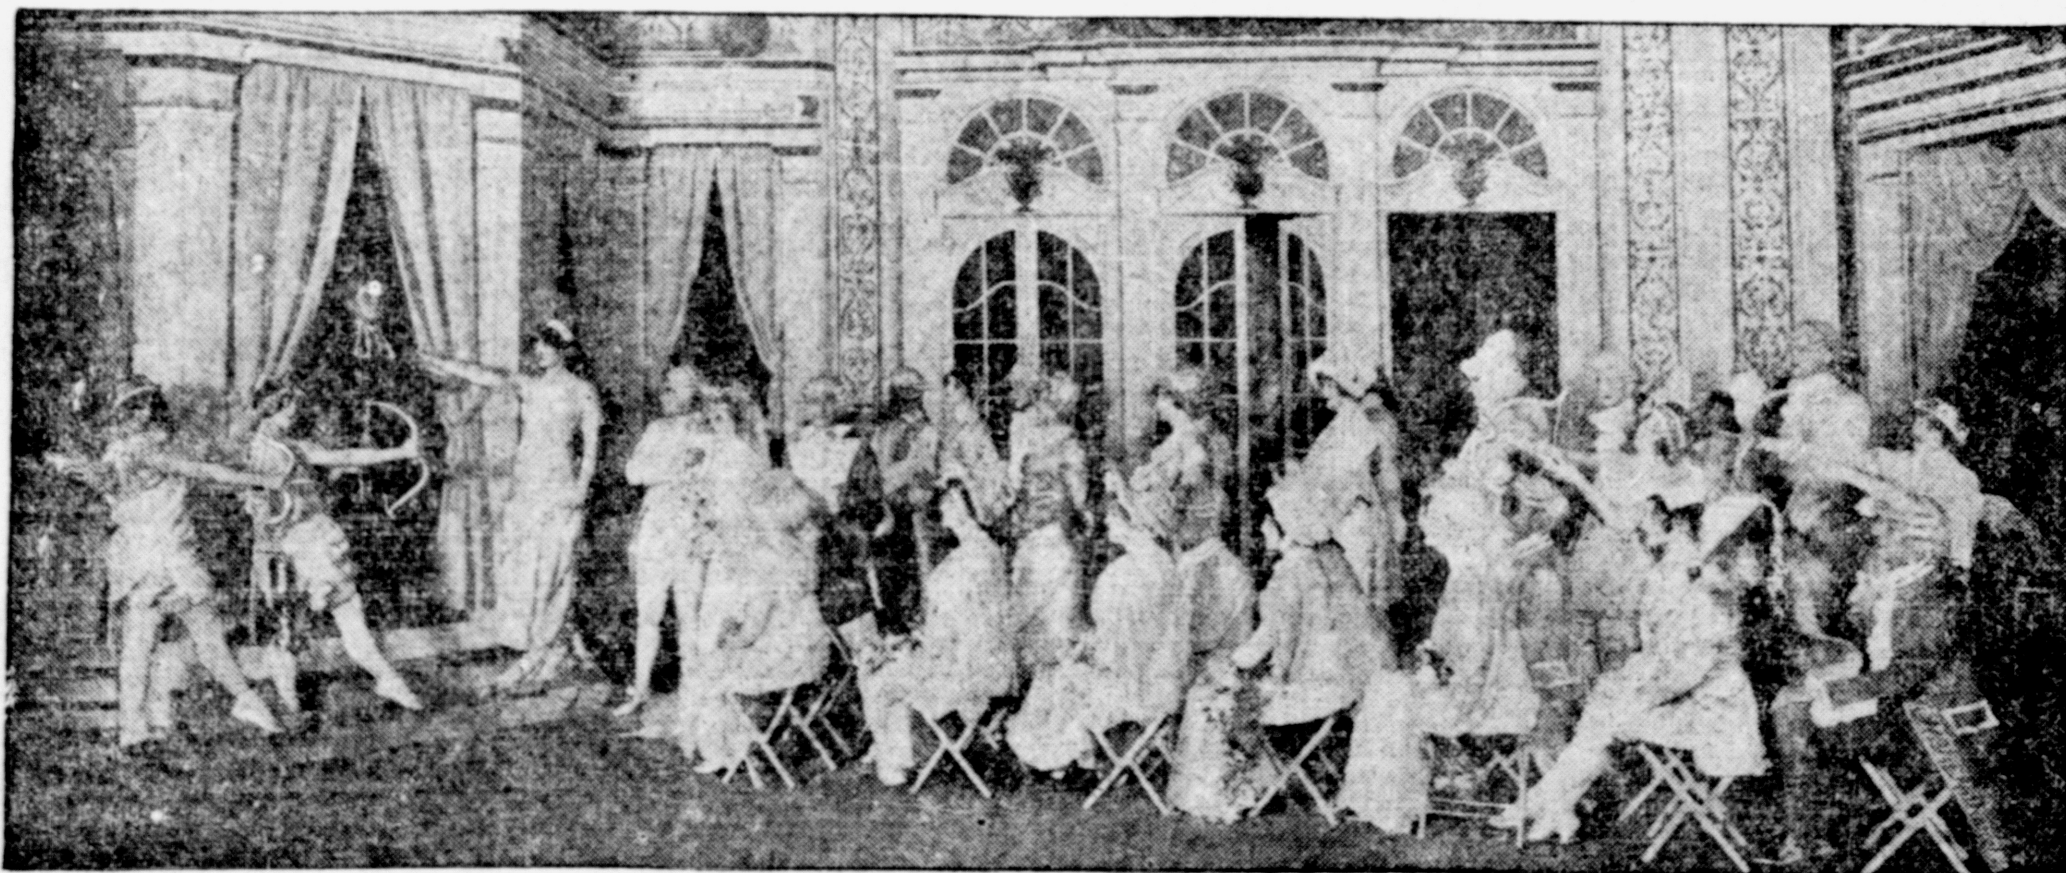

Because of the great danger of reprisals the Belgians have made no movement toward Brussels.

Fighting today was reported in progress near Malines and also in the general direction of Liege.

MINES KILL JAPS CHARGING GERMANS

PEKIN, Sept. 23.—Official advices from the Chinese officials now on the Shan Tung peninsula say the Japanese who are besieging the fortified German positions at Kiau Chau have lost heavily when the Germans exploded mines in ground over which the enemy was advancing. It is said that an entire Japanese battalion was badly smashed.

Reliability

is what a doctor must be assured of in recommending a food or drink. He must know that it is honest, efficient, pure and wholesome.

In cases of nervousness, heart flutter, headache, biliousness, indigestion, etc., where the patient is a coffee drinker, most doctors order, "Quit coffee and use Postum."

Doctors recommend Postum because they know that it is a pure food-drink — absolutely free from the drug, caffeine, which makes coffee injurious to most users.

It is significant that thousands of physicians not only recommend, but themselves use

POSTUM

—its worth having been fully demonstrated, not only in the home, but in Sanitariums, Hospitals and Colleges.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled—15c and 25c packages.

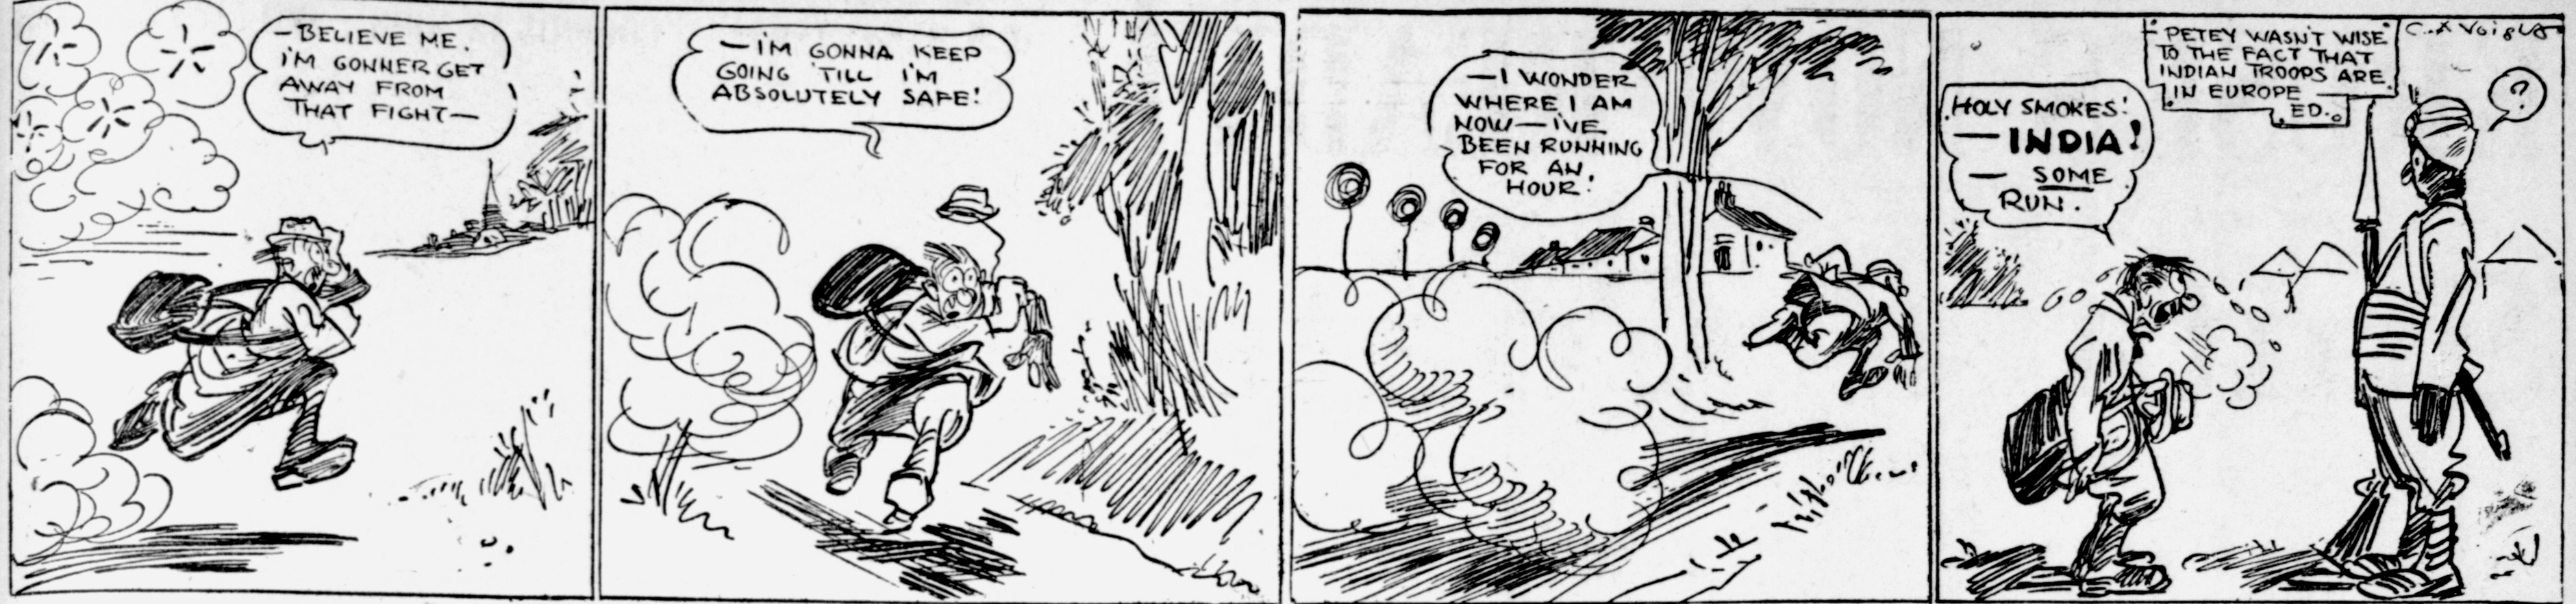

Instant Postum—soluble—no boiling—made in the cup with hot water, instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are delicious—cost per cup about the same—sold by Grocers everywhere.

SPOTLIGHTS

"WILDFIRE."

La Crosse theater audiences are being treated to something above the average in stock productions in "Wildfire," now being presented by the Earl and Eaton players. Miss Eaton has a supporting cast of more than ordinary ability. Mr. Carhart presents a rough and ready Donovan, the trainer. The part as

DOUBLE RACE CARD TODAY

Races of Yesterday Called Off on Account of Heavy Track, Are Run Today

A heavy track yesterday necessitated the postponement of the races scheduled for the day. A drag was put to work on the oval early in the morning in the hope of bringing it into shape for the afternoon. The track was in fine shape for the cards this afternoon.

Kissimmee, the bay stallion, belonging to Mrs. Harry Palmer of La Crosse, was the slight favorite for the 2:18 trot today, while Rob Roy ruled for the 2:09 pace. The gelding is owned by John C. Haley of Madison.

Nesterton, Frank Nohlecek's bay gelding, showed up best today for the 2:14 trot. Direct Patch, of the same owner, is expected to cop the money in the 2:23 trot, although Baylander, the blind horse of Mrs. Harry Palmer, was expected to draw up close.

played by Mr. Carhart shows a fine conception of ability as well.

Mr. McDowell plays John Duffy, the bookmaker, polished and refined, but still cruel and unscrupulous, the part requires big capabilities, and Mr. McDowell showed himself a most capable actor.

Mr. L. W. King is a remarkable comedian. He plays the Englishman in the first act, and Bud, the stable boy, in the second and third acts in a manner that evoked roars of laughter. Miss La Cour as Hortense, the colored maid, is a large contributor to the comedy of the production. The balance of the cast play their parts most acceptably.

"Wildfire" will be seen Friday night and Saturday afternoon and night of the week. "The Deep Purple" will be played for four days commencing next Sunday matinee.

"A MODERN EVE"

It is quite likely that this city, like Berlin, Vienna, Chicago and other cities, will yield to the spell of the tenebrous operetta, "A Modern Eve," which LeComte and Flesher, by arrangement with Mort H. Singer, will present at the La Crosse Theater tonight and tomorrow night.

To have been presented in Berlin for over two years, and in other European capitals, as well as in Chicago for a season at the Garrick Theater, and not to have met with a single critical rebuff, obviously means that "A Modern Eve" possesses a universal appeal. Mr. Singer, who was visiting Berlin, was so impressed by the adaptability of the book and the haunting melodies of the score of "A Modern Eve" that he felt impelled to bring it to America.

The sensational Dancing Four will present a novelty in their whirlwind and Tango dancing, and the Modern Eve Beauty chorus will be a feature. Among the song-hits are "Goodbye, Everybody," "You're Such a Lonesome Moon Tonight," "Is the Girl You Married Still the Girl You Love?" "Hello, Sweetheart," and "Rita, My Margarita."

FOUGHT THREE DAYS WITHOUT SIGHT OF ENEMY'S SOLDIERS

LONDON, Sept. 12.—By Mail to New York—The terror of modern warfare, in fighting with long range guns and facing fire from an invisible enemy, is vividly described by many of the wounded who have reached here. A lance corporal of the Connaught rangers today said he was in the little of battle three days before he saw a German.

"One day," said the corporal, "we lay for ten hours in the trenches with shells dropping around us like rain. We could see puffs of smoke along the horizon and hear the constant roar of the guns, but that was all. Only when you got a bullet in the arm or leg did you feel that you were really in a battle. Though we were under fire constantly it was three days before we actually set eyes on a German. After that there was plenty of hand-to-hand fighting."

BOYER-FURBER TO PUT IN NEW STOCK

With half a train load of new furniture, carpets, draperies and everything that goes to make up home furnishings, the Boyer-Furber Furniture company, 511 Main street, is enlarging its stock and is preparing to add the two top stories of the present building to its store.

The Boyer-Furber company will carry a larger and more varied assortment of stock than in the past. It will devote more attention to high grade furniture. The company's aim is to sell anything for the home which may be purchased in any city in the country.

When everything is completed the establishment will contain 4,000 feet of floor space. The building is undergoing complete interior remodeling.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur
Turns Gray, Faded Hair
Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

SCHIEBERL AND DEFOE TO MEET

Local Boxer Matched to Fight Red Wing Scrapper at Collins' Hudson Show

"Peanuts" Schieberl, local featherweight and teacher of boxing, and Billy Defoe of Red Wing have been matched for a ten round semi-final before Mike Collins' club at Hudson on October 9.

Schieberl has been in training for some time and is already in prime shape. Two weeks more of hard work will place the little scrapper on terms to meet the Red Wing fighter.

Advice from Red Wing have it that Defoe has been promised a match with Ritchie Mitchell in Milwaukee in case he wins the match. Mitchell is a contender for the world's featherweight honors.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD BY HAL SHERIDAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The enveloping movement of the allies directed against the flank of Gen. Von McGraw is now all but completed. The brilliant charges from the direction of Boston, which have carried the Braves from the swampy ground of The Valley to the heights of First Place, from which they are now shooting large gaing holes through all invaders, are as strong as ever.

The Giants are no longer advancing. Every indication is that they are in full retreat.

The offensive strategy of baseball being, in a broad sense, to hit the ball, advance men around the bases and score runs, it would appear that the giant general staff has had its cards gummed somewhere.

They now have not scored a run in eighteen innings and over the same stretch have made just ten hits, seven Monday and three Tuesday. On the other hand the Braves have scored four runs and walked out twelve hits during the same interval. The Braves now have a five game lead and by winning thirteen out of their remaining eighteen games will have the pennant cinched even though the Giants should suddenly hit a faster stride than they have known all season and win their remaining seventeen games in order.

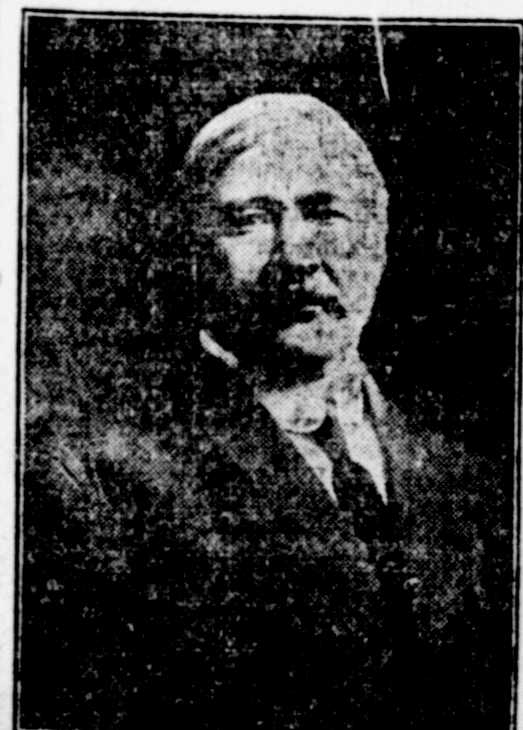

The Red Sox are now about as close to the Athletics in the chase for the American League flag as are the Giants to the Braves. Ray Collins turned an "iron man" stunt, pitching a double-header, getting away with both games. He was going better in the second game than the first, holding the Tigers to four hits in that encounter and shutting them out.

RECORDS SET AT COLUMBUS RACES

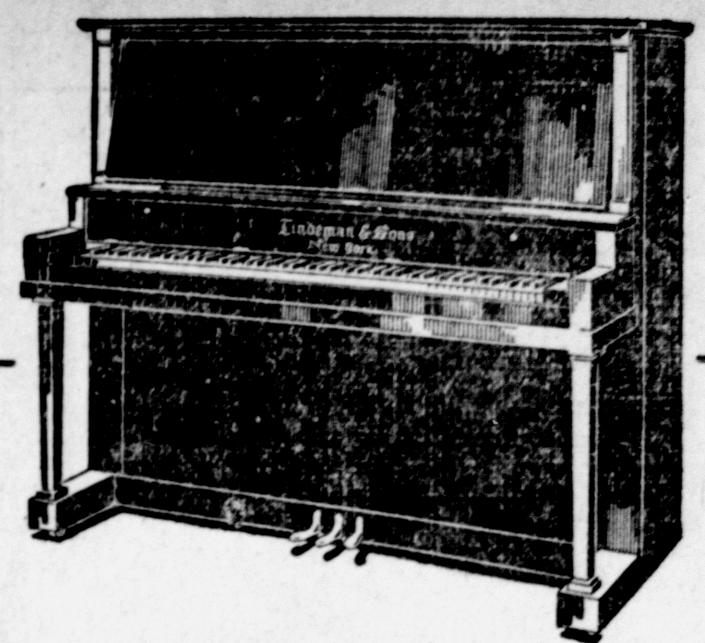

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—Yesterday was extreme speed day at the driving park, a batch of new world's records being established, the 3-year-old pacing filly Anna Bradford being responsible for the record breaking. Anna Bradford won the pacing division of the Horse Review future in 2:03 1-2 and 2:01 1-2, the latter a world's record for 3-year-olds. Quantum, the second colt, was timed in 2:07 1-2.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation. The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease. Chas. A. Beyschlag, druggist, 503 Main street.

480 Acres for $222

Think of it! You can file on a 320 acre homestead in Wyoming for only $22, and, under certain conditions, buy an additional 160 acres of Government pasture land adjoining for $1.25 per acre. These lands are valuable for mixed farming, dairying and live-stock raising.

This is a splendid opportunity for a man without much money to get a good start. Write me today about a location before the good land is all taken up.
